Petitions for local junior college district planned

Plans are being made to circulate petitions for creation of a junior college district in the Quad-City area.

A June 30 deadline for local action has been set by the Illinois Junior College Board. Otherwise, the state is empowered to assign this community to an existing district, such as Lewis and Clark at Godfrey or the Belleville Area College.

Local planning has included not only instruction in the Quad-Cities but also extensive cooperation with Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Senate Bill 951, introduced at the request of a local junior college study committee, is intended to simplify such cooperation. It has passed the Illinois Senate 40 to 0 and has been sent to the House of Representatives.

Senate Bill 811, which would have enacted into law minimum standards that had been placed in effect by the IJCBA, has been modified so that the Quad-City area is able to meet assessed valuation and population criteria.

The study committee—formed at the suggestion of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce—is headed by Attorney Leo H. Konzen of the Lueders, Robertson and Konzen law firm, and its members include Dr. Dean Wiley of SIUE and Mayor Mike Sasyk of Madison. Among other members are Granite City School Supt. B. J. Davis, Paul Walter, Mrs. Emylee Alford and William F. Winter.

There also has been Collinsville representation, but in the past several months steps have been taken to affiliate the Collinsville and Highland areas with Belleville College.

A study has been prepared on potential cooperative services between SIUE and the proposed new junior college district.

One of the conclusions is that a consortium would minimize capital costs, maximize program flexibility and keep the cost to taxpayers at perhaps half the cost to residents of the Belleville district or Lewis and Clark district.

A partial text follows:

There would appear to be a sound basis for cooperation between Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and a new junior college district incorporating those areas of Madison County not presently included in a junior college district, should such a new junior college district be formed.

On one hand, there are areas where SIUE can provide services to a small college at reduced cost; on the other hand, there would be advantages to the university in using some of its existing capabilities to assist the new junior college district.

More specifically, it would appear that through utilizing university land, buildings, instructional staff and/or academic support facilities and services (e.g. library, audiovisual, computer center), a significant reduction in costs and, therefore in the tax burden to citizens of the district could be achieved.

It would further appear that if the proposed new district obtained a sizeable portion of its services from the university, a degree of flexibility in academic programming—which is pres-

Today's issue

One of the milestones in a current transition in Press-Record production methods was reached today, when all pages were printed from Dynaflex plastic plates attached to special saddles on units of this newspaper's Goss letterpress. The Dynaflex plates replace metal page plates.

Steps taken to reach this point have included installation of page-size photographic and plate processing equipment, and institution of new engraving techniques.

The changeover in mechanical procedures is not yet complete. Chief steps ahead are fuller utilization of the photo-typesetting method, for which a new composing room is being created; removal of present "hot metal" typesetting machines in the late summer; and rearrangement of some of the departments within the newspaper building during the fall.

The end result is expected to be a more efficient, attractive and complete newspaper.

Fatal explosion

Bernard B. Caruso, 55, Rural Route One, Granite City, was fatally injured at 1 p.m. Friday in an accident on the lawn near a work shed at his home, where he was cutting lids off 55-gallon steel drums.

One drum exploded, throwing him backwards, and he struck his head on an iron welding table. He had been using an acetylene torch. It apparently ignited fumes.

The explosion scattered parts of the drum 25 feet across the yard, situated at Horseshoe Lake.

Mr. Caruso was working on the drums in preparation for packing his tools in them. The family was moving during the

Low infant hurt in crash still critical

Eight-month-old Melissa Denise Lowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald G. Lowe of Granite City, remains unconscious and in critical condition at St. Louis Children's Hospital, where she has been a patient since the Memorial Day weekend auto accident that claimed the life of her sister, Michelle Christine, 6 years, and seriously injured her father.

The infant underwent brain surgery lasting several hours Tuesday. She sustained skull and leg fractures in the crash, occurring May 26 near Doniphan, Mo.

Lowe, 25, has been transferred from the Veterans' Hospital at Poplar Bluff, Mo., to John Cochran Veterans' Hospital, St. Louis. He is undergoing treatment for fractures to the pelvis and right arm and a shattered left leg. He is expected to remain hospitalized many months.

Mrs. Sonora Lee Lowe, 25, the mother, was released last week from Ripley County Memorial Hospital at Doniphan. She is recuperating at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Thomas, 2730 Center St., Apt. B.

Two other Lowe children, Laura Marie, 4, and Angela Diane, 2, who suffered minor injuries in the Highway 21 accident, are staying with another family member in the Quad-Cities, a spokesman said.

An account has been established at Granite City Trust & Savings Bank, 1609 Edison Ave., where donations may be sent, designated for the "Ronald Lowe Fund," to help the family meet its financial obligations.

Lowe's 1967 car was not insured; neither is the family covered by medical insurance, as the father began fulltime employment at a St. Louis business firm too recently for coverage to go into effect.

New flood loan deadline June 30

Robert A. Dwyer, Midwest regional director of the Small Business Administration, has announced that the deadline for applying for SBA relief aid has been extended to June 30 in 33 Illinois counties affected by flooding this spring, including Madison County.

The 33 counties are those originally cited in a Presidential disaster declaration which opened the way for SBA relief aid. At the time, a June 27 deadline was established. Dwyer said July 9 and July 16 deadlines remain in effect for flood victims in 14 other counties subsequently included in the declaration.

SBA personnel are stationed in 12 emergency offices in Illinois, including the East St. Louis Vocational Rehabilitation Center, 913 Illinois Ave., where the telephone is 274-2470 and the hours are 8 a.m.-6 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

The declaration enables home owners, tenants, business people, churches, private schools and non-profit organizations in affected areas to qualify for low-cost, long-term SBA loans to restore or replace damaged property not covered by insurance.

A lifelong resident of Granite City until a short time ago, William David Fricker, 23, of 8422 Lowell Lane, Glasgow Village, St. Louis County, apparently shot himself to death accidentally at 7 p.m. Friday while sitting in an automobile with a 16-year-old girl. The car was in front of the home of a friend, William Graham, 10700 Spring Garden Drive, Glasgow Village.

He was pronounced dead upon arrival at St. Louis County Hospital. There will be an inquest. Mr. Fricker had gone with his roommate, Coy Edmond, and the girl to pick up Graham. Edmond and Graham were returning to the auto when the shooting occurred.

County police said he apparently believed that a 38-caliber Derringer pistol was empty, because he had removed one bullet before putting it to his head.

Mr. Fricker was born in Granite City and was a member of the First Assembly of God Church here. He had been employed for one year as a timekeeper at Scullin Steel Co., St. Louis.

He is survived by his father, Ralph Fricker; his mother, Mrs. Shirley Taylor; and one sister, Mrs. Edward (Vicki) Lynne Schoenheit of St. Louis. Funeral services were held today. Details are given in the obituary column.

Woman beaten with pistol in Venice

An East St. Louis woman was injured when beaten with a pistol at the Venice Gas & Oil Co., Fourth Street and Lincoln Avenue, at 4:40 p.m. yesterday.

Mrs. Ivy Kennedy, 24, East St. Louis, said she and Louis Leonard, 24, Gretna Homes, Madison, were in a car at Fourth and Broadway, Venice, when another car struck the rear of their auto.

Leonard stopped their car at the service station and two women in the other car came up; one fired at her with a pistol several times, she related. The women then pulled Mrs. Kennedy from the car and one struck her head with the pistol several times; one also took a two-month-old baby from her, she said. The assailant was related to the baby, it was asserted.

Mrs. Kennedy was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital with two puncture wounds to her scalp.

Police searched for the assailant's car but a toll collector on McKinley Bridge reported seeing the auto going toward St. Louis on the bridge.

The infant was born in a Highland hospital.

Other than the parents, survivors include the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hayes Sr. of Millstadt, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Landers of Florida.

Funeral arrangements are given in the obituary column.

Vacation pay draws con men in droves

By JOAN MURARO
COJAN News Service

Springfield—At first glance, there may not seem to be much connection between a two-week vacation and a phony furnace repairman. But there is, and without caution, the connection may become painfully clear to a number of Illinois residents who will get neither a vacation trip nor a working furnace.

In the office of Atty. Gen. William J. Scott warns that many fraudulent operations involving home repairs become numerous at this time of year, because workers are getting their two- or three-week vacation salaries and automatically become tempting challenges to various con men.

Where home improvement frauds are concerned, most of the shady operators seem to stick to a "fixed and true" policy of using the same old tricks on new victims.

For instance, the furnace repair racket is still big. In that case, someone appears at the door, says he's the city furnace inspector and wants to check your furnace to be sure it's safe. How lucky for you he came by! It seems you have a really bad gas leak, and if he does his act properly, he'll even have you smelling gas as yourself before long. He advises you to get it fixed as rapidly as possible, and leaves.

Enter his partner, who knocks on your door a few minutes later and identifies himself as a representative of the Phony Flue Furnace Co., who just happens to be in the neighborhood and wonders if you need any furnace work done. If you let him in, it's "good-bye, two weeks in the Poconos, hello, torn up furnace." Since you just happen to have that nice chunky vacation check, you can pay him for "protecting" you by repairing a furnace that has nothing wrong with it. The usual pitch is to dismantle the furnace, and then leave, promising to return the following day with some needed part. Naturally, the self-styled repairman is never seen again—unless it's at a nice resort where he's spending your vacation money.

Presently, according to Mike McGreary in the attorney general's office, the consumer fraud division is taking a close look at basement waterproofing firms, after receiving a number of complaints from homeowners who got rooked in the pocketbook as well as the basement. The product in question actually will do a good waterproofing job, if properly applied, he said, but the fly-by-night operations prefer to slap it on, collect and depart, leaving the homeowner to find out with the next rain that he didn't get what he paid for.

Some of the complaints get a little more imaginative. One woman recently reported she had been billed by three men posing as "light bulb inspectors," who would, for a fee, provide her with light bulbs which would save electricity. Through some of the frauds sound so obvious it is hard to

Walker proposes cut in state income tax

Gov. Dan Walker on Thursday proposed additional tax relief to bring the total tax relief program to $130.7 million.

He made the proposal in a special message to the General Assembly, outlining his priorities for the first month of the legislative session.

Under Gov. Walker's proposal, the exemption from the Illinois personal income tax would be increased from $1,000 to $1,400 per person, a 40% increase in the exemption.

The extra $400 exemption is designed to ease the burden of the state sales tax on food and other necessities.

The new plan provides a total of $30 tax relief for each family of five earning $10,000 annually—cutting their income tax from $125 to $95, a 40% reduction.

The proposal would give $12.7 million additional tax relief to Illinois taxpayers. Added to his original $118 million tax relief package, the new proposal brings the total tax relief recommended by Gov. Walker to $130.7 million.

Gov. Walker said the upward revision of tax relief of his March 7 budget message, was made possible by increased state revenue estimates resulting from reductions in state spending, and an inflationary economy.

Gov. Walker said: "As a result of these increased revenue estimates and government economies, I am proposing an additional $12.7 million of tax relief."

"With these dollars, we can increase the food and necessities exemption by $100 per individual to $1,400."

"As increased, this exemption would give $10 of sales tax relief to every person—it would put $30 in the pockets of a family of five."

Gov. Walker said the new program, if approved by the General Assembly, would become effective July 1, when lower rates of income tax withholding would be applied to paychecks.

He said those who do not earn enough income to pay any state income tax would receive a grant equal to the amount of the tax on the unused portion of the necessities exemption.

Gov. Walker said: "Because of the structure of this exemption, it provides —Statewide Probation. The governor said a statewide, professional probation system "is an indispensable step in rehabilitation of criminal offenders" and he urged passage of pending legislation to establish such a system.

Survey shows Edwardsville stable and concerned city

Edwardsville is a stable community whose citizens favor increased community concern for the old as well as young people, a survey of public opinion has revealed.

The survey was taken earlier this year by five volunteer members, with the cooperation of the Edwardsville City Council and the Chamber of Commerce.

Robert H. Lauer, chairman of the sociology department at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, provided technical advice and a summary analysis of survey data.

Lauer presented his analysis to the sponsoring Edwardsville ministers.

Five thousand, four hundred and sixty telephone calls were completed, representing 82% of the city's population. Of these, 1,270 were selected at random were programmed to compute matters. According to Lauer, this system "should reflect fairly accurately facts about the population as a whole."

Lauer said the survey furnished three types of data: information about the population, religious information and public relations about a number of civic matters.

Lauer said the data indicated that "only seven per cent of the citizens of Edwardsville have lived in the city one year or less, while nearly 20% have lived there for 40 years or more."

Compared to much of the nation, then, Edwardsville is a relatively stable community, with a large proportion of older citizens," Lauer said. He suggested that these figures should be taken into account in any kind of community planning.

The sociologist said some of the religious information accumulated conforms to common knowledge. In the community of Edwardsville, he said, "considerably more males than females report no religion; more females than males rate the church as 'very important'; a majority of the population of older people rate the church as 'very important' than do younger people."

Some of the information, he said, did not conform. "A greater proportion of females than males changed religion at some point in their life" among the Edwardsville population, in contrast with the national pattern.

Among the other questions and responses tabulated: Do you feel there is a need for more community-wide youth programs? Yes, 72.4%; no, 27.6%; no opinion, 21.1%.

Would you favor building a public swimming pool for our community? Yes, 72.4%; no, 27.6%; no opinion, 21.1%.

Do we need more large parks? Yes, 58.4%; no, 20.5%; no opinion, 21.1%.

Do we need more "vest pocket" parks? Yes, 48.9%; no, 28.4%; no opinion, 22.7%.

Is there a need for activities for senior citizens? Yes, 61.5%; no, 6.9%; no opinion, 28.6%.

Should there be an organized effort to save downtown Edwardsville? Yes, 78.7%; no, 7.1%; no opinion, 14.2%.

In interpreting this data, Lauer said "I suspect that the rather large proportion of those who expressed no opinion on many of the questions reflects their concern to know some more specific information of them, in other words, might well support a specific proposal or program."

The idea for the community-service came originally from the Rev. Roger A. Zollars and his wife, who are active in the Edwardsville, as part of an evangelical crusade, "Key '73."

SIU campuses to host architects' conference

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale and SIU at Edwardsville will host the 18th annual conference of the Association of University Architects June 24-28.

Some 50 architects associated with the university campuses in the U. S. and Canada are expected to attend, according to Charles Pulley, advisory architect for the SIU system and a former AUA president.

The group will meet at SIUC the first three days then will wind up with a fourth-day session at SIUE which will include a speech appearance by R. Buckminster Fuller, "comprehensive design" philosopher and inventor of such 20th century structural innovations as the geodesic dome.

Among topics to be covered at the SIUC meetings in the Student Center are long-range planning, construction management, building budgets, facilities planning and a discussion of assigning blame for campus construction problems.

The proposed $6 million rapid transit monorail for SIUC will be described by John F. H. Loneragan, campus planner. Assistant Provost John Baker will tell the group about the state of higher education in Illinois.

Picnics, social hours, and area tours has been scheduled for the conference participants and their wives. Most are expected to stay at Mae Smith Tower in the campus Brush Towers residence area.

Discussion moderators for the Carbondale sessions will include Van Dorn Hooker, University of New Mexico; Kenneth Garrison, University of Washington; Bruce Jensen, University of Utah; Howard O. Krasoff, Temple University, and Pulley.

The Venice Town Board appropriated $54,000 in federal revenue sharing funds to develop five special programs in the township at a meeting Thursday night.

An allocation of $30,000 was set as the township share of the cost to install and operate an incinerator for disposal of trash and garbage in conjunction with the cities of Madison and Venice.

The board budgeted $10,000 to purchase and operate an eight passenger minibus to transport senior citizens on shopping trips in the township and for visits to doctors and the hospital in the local area.

An appropriation of $5,000 was set to obtain glasses and hearing aids for senior citizens. Plans were made for development of a minibus field on an eight-acre tract on Bissell Street, Venice, at a cost of $3,800 to $4,000.

Christ Fushoff, township supervisor, said the previous administration had appropriated $34,000 in federal revenue sharing funds for salaries and other operating costs. The township had received $55,000 composed of 1972 allotments and the allotment for the first quarter of this year.

Extension classes is education to continue

Extension classes by the Education Division of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville will be available again in the fall quarter, according to W. Deane Wiley, dean of the division.

Wiley said a realignment of priorities has made it possible to resume offering extension classes, for which there is a continuing public demand.

Courses may be offered any day of the week at convenient times of the day as arranged between students and faculty. Graduate credit can be given toward advanced degrees with concurrence from the Graduate School, Wiley said.

Donald Madison, chairman of the Secondary Education Department, said the resumption of extension classes will allow courses to be taught in the field to meet the needs of teachers and educators in the university service area. Traditionally, teachers are the principal participants in extension classes.

Madison said if arrangements are made in advance, courses can be "tailor-made" for school districts wishing in-service programs, groups needing special training, "or nearly any other educational objective desired by educators at the junior high, senior high or community college levels."

A minimum of 15 persons enrolled is needed to offer a class. Madison said some of the courses available will be "Cultural Differences," "Humanistic Teaching of English," "Action Goals for the 70's," "Innovative Teaching," "Community Junior College," and "Current Practices."

Any school district or group of teachers who desire in-service programs, special workshops, seminars or specific courses are asked to contact the Education Division, Madison said.

King wins race as Corbin sets record

Veteran racing driver Ronnie King of St. Louis added his City piloted his Chevrolet to name to the growing list of feature race winners and East Alton's C. Corbin set a new qualifying lap record at the Tri-City Speedway Friday night.

King led a field of 14 late model car drivers around the one-half mile dirt oval, defeating a hard charging Wil Spalding of Pontoon Beach on the final lap of a 22-lap feature event. He was the fifth driver to win a feature event this season.

Spalding, driving hard on King's rear bumper trying to repeat his feature win a month ago, was forced to drop out of competition on the 24th lap when his car's engine overheated.

Corbin, who rewrote the record books with a 23.83 second qualifying lap, became the victim of a damaged engine during the feature. Spalding was the second fastest qualifier with 29 seconds.

King ruled the track after qualifying ended, winning every lap entered. He defeated 17-year-old Kenny Schrader of Valley Park, Mo., in the third heat race and downed Louie Jansen of Bethalto and Joe Northrup of Jacksonville in the 15-lap semi-feature.

The fifth fastest qualifier, Clyde Lindeman of Missouri, attempted his own clean sweep, winning the first heat event inches ahead of Spalding and taking the checkered flag ahead of Johnny Prior of Centralia.

Spalding in the handicap.

Lindeman could only muster a third-place finish behind King. Prior in the feature, ending his hopes for triple honors.

A newcomer in the hobby car ranks, Rod Bailey of Granite City piloted his Chevrolet to victory in the feature race for his class.

Late model and hobby stock racing will resume this Friday with time trials at 7 p.m. and racing at 8 p.m.

The two local Inter-City Base-teners, Mercer and St. Mary's Boosters, were rained out Sunday.

In league action, three-run homers by Jim Fraizer and Burns, both in the first inning, helped the East Alton Vans demolish Molitor Motors of Collinsville 18-2. Molitor is now 2-3 and Vans is 4-1 in league play.

A ninth-inning error gave Roxana a 10-9 win over Glen Carbon Sunday. Roxana has a 4-4 record and Glen Carbon is 0-4.

League teams will play two games under the lights at 8 p.m. Wednesday. Roxana will play on the Pioner diamond and Troy will travel to Fletcher Field in Collinsville to face Molitor.

Scott brothers earn baseball letters at Ill. Wesleyan U.

Brothers Jim and Bob Scott of Collinsville (Madison High School) wound up the baseball season in contrasting fashion at Illinois Wesleyan University.

Jim, senior left fielder who was mired under 200 past mid-season, cracked out six hits in his last 15 times at bat to raise his final average to .259 as he earned his third varsity letter. He wound up with 21 hits in 81 times at bat and led the team in runs scored with 21. He batted in 15 runs.

Bob, a junior earning his first letter, was plagued by illness late in the season and finished at .305 after hitting safely only twice in his last 14 times at bat.

Because of the illness, Coach Jack Horenberger didn't use Bob at his natural position of catcher in the final part of the season, putting him in the outfield.

"It's hard telling what Bob would have done had he kept his full strength. He just didn't have his power late in the season," said Horenberger of Bob, who hit all four of his home runs in the Titans' first 15 games.

Bob still placed second on the team in runs batted in with 16 and had 18 hits in 59 times at bat.

Jim was named to the College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin all-star team for the second year in a row and batted .321 in conference games. He concluded his collegiate career with a .303 average and hit .331 for four years of conference action.

Wesleyan finished with a 14-11 record and placed third in the CCWV with an 11-5 mark. The Titans' nonconference victims included Northern Illinois, Bradley and Eastern Illinois, which qualified for the National college division World Series.

Cougars name Twellman top athlete of year

Tom "TNT" Twellman, star of both the soccer and baseball teams, was named the "Most Outstanding Athlete" at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville at the Cougars' sixth annual men's intercollegiate sports awards banquet last week.

A junior, Twellman performed brilliantly in both soccer and baseball during the past year. An offensive star in soccer, he was a key performer in the Cougars' march to their first national championship as they captured the NCAA college division national fall.

A versatile baseball player, capable of playing every position including pitching (he was St. Louis University High School's top pitcher his senior year), Twellman anchored the Cougars' outstanding double play combination. As a sophomore in the 1972 campaign he led all Cougar hitters with a .332 batting average.

Bothered by a growth in his chest, which had to be removed just before the tournament by surgery, Twellman's batting fell off to .322, but his play allied never appeared to falter. He returned in time to take part in last week's Midwest NCAA regional baseball tournament.

In soccer, his play-making abilities make him stand out, but he was a constant scoring threat. He lives in north St. Louis County with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Twellman.

For next season, Twellman has been elected co-captain of the soccer and baseball teams. Twellman was picked by a vote of all the SIUE coaches, at which Bob Burnes, a St. Louis executive sports editor, also honored at the dinner.

In baseball it was Jerry Pilcher, in basketball the nod went to Tony Jackson. The top golfer was Marty Baker. In

Cougar golfers get NCAA bid

The Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville golf team has been invited to play in the 11th annual National Collegiate Athletic Association college division golf championships to be held June 12-15 in California. It has been announced.

It is the third time in four years that the Cougar golfers of Coach Harry Galatin have qualified to play in the NCAA finals.

Host of the tourney will be the University of California, Riverside, Calif. It will be played on the Quail Lake Golf Course.

Five SIU golfers will make the trip. Four have already been chosen, leaving one of two yet to be picked by playoff for the fifth slot. Chosen are Bob Blarks, Doug Macalla, Marty Baker and Mike Trebing. Involved in the playoff are Rusty Pierce and Terry Souchock.

The Cougars, playing both a fall and spring schedule, posted a 24-4 record. Results show that St. Louisian Marty Baker recorded that lowest rounds stroke average, a 77.64 over 39 rounds.

Next in order were: Macalla (78.35 in 36 rounds); Randy Arnet (78.24 in 36 rounds); Terry Souchock (78.6 in 31 rounds); Keith Swindell (78.66 in 36 rounds); Bob Blarks (78.8 in 36 rounds); Mike Trebing (78.97 in 36 rounds) and Rusty Pierce (78.70 in 30 rounds).

One of the biggest highlights of the Cougars' successful season was their victory over SIU-Carbondale, the first time the Edwardsville school has played and defeated the Salukis in a varsity sport.

Army moves to declare 72 acres excess at GC base

A report by the U. S. Defense Department declaring as excess 72 acres of land at the Granite City Army Installation was referred Thursday to the House Armed Services Committee at Washington, D. C., and now will be subject to public hearings, according to the office of Cong. Melvin Price (D-East St. Louis).

The report will be referred to Subcommittee Five of the House Armed Services Committee which will conduct the hearings and take action on behalf of the full committee unless objections are raised. Cong. Price is a member of the House Armed Services Committee.

If no objections are raised by June 30, the report will go to the General Services Administration which will determine if the excess land is needed by any federal agency. If there is no need of the tracts by federal agencies, the state will be given priority. Price's office said municipalities in the Quad-City area would be given an opportunity to acquire the land if its use is not needed by the state.

"According to the report, the excess land involves:

Tract One—Forty acres located in the northeast portion of the Army facility which has been used as railroad and mobilization yards. Upon completion of Federal Aid Route 151 from Nidringhaus Avenue in Granite City to Venice, this tract will be separated from the Army installation.

Tract Two—Thirty acres in a strip of land 200 feet wide and parallel to the east boundary of the Army installation, which is under easement to the state of Illinois as right-of-way for FA Route 151.

Tract Three—Two acres in a strip of land 100 feet wide parallel to the south boundary of the Army facility and contains a portion of the sewage system of the East Side Levee and Sanitary District for the city of Madison.

The report shows also that the area of the Army installation will be 834 acres after the 72 acres of excess land is separated. The value of land holdings presently is $544,750, an amount which will be reduced by $36,000 as the value of the 72-acre tract, it added.

The Army now has improvement values of $24,708,600 at the Army installation, with $242,500 of that amount fixed as the value of improvements on the excess of 72 acres.

Inner-city student needs eyed by SIUE department

Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville's department of business education is working to help meet the special need of inner-city students through an urban-oriented vocational teacher education program.

Teaching in an inner-city school environment presents some unique problems for prospective teachers, according to Robert Schultheis, department chairman, and often requires techniques not found in traditional university teacher education programs.

"The proximity of East St. Louis, Brooklyn, Madison and St. Louis enables the selection of competent persons and excellent teaching experiences," Schultheis said, "and we (SIUE) are in a unique position to provide the expertise needed for giving prospective teachers this experience."

Some high school students in urban vocational programs, for example, have an average reading level of about the fifth grade, and because of the students' poor reading abilities, some feel inferior and drop out, Schultheis said.

A large portion of these urban-oriented students come from socio-economic depressed areas, according to Schultheis.

The process is one of sensitizing various groups of people to the life styles, cultures, values and problems of the urban-oriented student, according to Mrs. Varnell. Techniques used include role-playing and simulated experiences.

In the simulation process, for example, student teachers help high school students set up a real business to learn about the process involved in setting up a checking account by actually setting up an account, according to Mrs. Varnell.

Other interdisciplinary areas brought into the program include an introduction to Black linguistics as developed by Theresa Loui, associate professor of English at SIUE, and a tutorial course in cultural differences taught by Rudy Wilson, lecturer in secondary education at SIUE.

Various clinical experiences in alternative educational programs are also available to prospective student teachers in business education before they start their student teaching.

The utility agreed to donate the land for the town building if these persons who objected at the time the buffer area was created would withdraw their protests.

Those who continued to object at the hearing Thursday night said they feared an eventual opening of Paradise and Warsaw lanes, now dead-end streets, into the buffer area. Town officials said, however, that access to the town building could be made from Route 111.

A problem is expected to be discussed in a regular meeting of the Chouteau Town Board tonight.

Teenagers available here for a wide range of jobs this summer

Employers are being urged to list their summer job openings with the Illinois State Employment Service in proclamations issued by the Quad-City mayors designating this as "Summer Jobs for Youth Time."

The mayors stress an early listing of job needs with the ISES so employers may take advantage of the widest selection of youthful job seekers.

Because of the limited space available at the Illinois State Employment Service Office, Dorel D. Stites, manager of the ISES here, is asking employers to call the Coordinated Youth Services office, 976-2383, to place all orders for summer jobs for youth.

The ISES will be occupying space provided by Coordinated Youth Services at 1255 N. Ringhaus Ave. in a cooperative effort for this special summer job project, Stites said.

All employer orders, matching of qualified summer workers, to these orders, and referring of youths to these job lists will be handled from the ISES office.

The local Employment Service office helps employers to match their job needs with qualified and work-ready job seekers throughout the year, it was explained.

Now, with the closing of high schools and colleges, special emphasis will be placed on giving students summer employment.

In their proclamations, the mayors say, "Many employers may find it profitable to hire these young people for summer jobs."

They urge all employers to "consider hiring student workers in their stores, plants, offices and homes, and to list their job openings at an early date" with the ISES at the CYC center.

The skills of young people can be used in factory and warehouse, food services, agriculture, retail and outside sales, as well as in many general occupations, it is noted. As many as 85% of all jobs can be filled by youth aged 16 and over, Stites asserts.

Following are more than 100 jobs which teenage students seeking summer jobs are believed capable of handling:

Factory and warehouse: assembler, bindery worker, canner, worker, cleanup, factory hand, guard, hand packer, helper, inspector, inventory clerk, material handler, order picker, packager, packer, porter, stock clerk, warehouseman and watchman.

Food service: bus boy or girl, cashier, cook, counterjumper, countermaid, dishwasher, fountain helper, kitchen helper, short order cook, waitress and waiter.

Agriculture: corn detassler, farm hand, fruit picker, grass cutter, greenhouse worker, groundskeeper, harvester, landscaper, lawn tender, tree pruner, weed cutter and yardman.

Clerical: bookkeeper, clerk, clerk-typist, dictaphone operator, detailer, draftsman, engineroom, file clerk, office boy or girl, office machine operator, posting clerk, receptionist, stenographer, switchboard operator, telephone solicitor, typist and vacation replacement.

Retail sales: adjustment clerk, cashier, checkout clerk, delivery boy, demonstrator, grocery marker, order taker, produce worker, sales clerk, salesperson, will-call clerk and wrapper.

Outside sales: delivery, door-to-door sales, handbill delivery, news stand sales, salesman, sample distributor, solicitor, survey worker and truck sales.

Service (general): athletic assistant, baby sitter, bellhop, book stacker, bus driver, cabdriver, camp counselor, carhop, car washer, coach, construction helper, elevator operator, gas station attendant, guard, guide, handyman, highway helper.

Hospital worker, houseman, instructor, janitor, laboratory assistant, librarian, lifeguard, messenger, nurse aid, orderly, painter, parks attendant, teacher.

Ticket taker, tourist guide, tutor, truck driver, truck driver helper, usher, window washer, window trimmer and many more.

$100,000 suit filed over bridge fatality

A suit for $100,000 has been filed against the City of Madison by the First National Bank of Greenville, administrator of the estate of the late Mrs. Ericka Ickenroth of St. Louis, in Madison County Circuit court.

Mrs. Ickenroth was killed June 10, 1972, when she drove onto and struck the old Chain of Rocks Bridge, owned by the city, which had been closed to traffic for two years.

The complaint alleges that the bridge approaches were unsafe, the bridge was closed unlawfully and that the city failed to maintain adequate barricades, safeguards and warnings.

HONOR STUDENTS at St. Elizabeth Catholic School who received the American Legion Award at graduation exercises. They are Edward Sedej, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sedej, 4060 Stearns Ave. and Kathleen Sue Mushill, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mushill, 2305 St. Bernard Ave.

Revenue, education appointees named

Gov. Dan Walker Thursday appointed a U. S. Internal Revenue Service official as assistant director of the state Department of Revenue and a former student at the University of Florence, Italy, to the Board of Higher Education.

Charles T. Cartwright, 36, of Chicago, who is field audit group supervisor for the IRS in Chicago, will replace Mrs. Helen Schmid, who was appointed as the first woman member of the Illinois Commerce Commission two weeks ago by Governor Walker.

Dorsey C. Day, 52, of Chicago, will fill a vacancy on higher education board which has existed since before Governor Walker took office.

Both posts require Senate confirmation. Cartwright will be paid $27,000, by statute. The Board of Higher Education position is unsalaried.

Patty Jane Crump and James Kehl Moore wed

Miss Patty Jane Crump, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Crump, 4014 Central Lane, and James Kehl Moore of Hazelwood, Mo., a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Moore who resided in Tacoma, Wash., were united in marriage May 26 in an afternoon ceremony taking place at the Cedar View General Baptist Church, 3700 Ruth Drive.

Jack Jenkins, organist, provided the wedding music as the Rev. Gus Falter Jr., officiated at the 3 o'clock double ring ceremony in a setting of palms, greenery and candelabra holding lighted tapers.

Mr. Crump gave his daughter in marriage. She selected a gown of white chiffon over tulle with bishop sleeves set in an Empire bodice. White Venise lace inserted with white satin ribbon trimmed the neckline and extended down the bodice in rows to encircle the high rise waistline.

Her gown was designed with a slightly gathered skirt full-length. She wore a picture hat of spun straw with white satin ribbon streamers and she carried a nosegay of spring flowers, including daisies, roses and carnations intermingled with baby breath.

Mrs. David Moss, sister of the bride, and Greg Moore, son of the bridegroom, attended the couple.

Kay Burgener becomes Mrs. Harry D. Garren

St. Mary's Catholic Church in Taylorville, Ill., was the scene of the wedding on May 27 of Miss Kay Burgener, 218 W. Markley St., Taylorville, and Harry D. Garren, 3019 Cleveland Road, Richfield, Ohio.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Burgener, 629 Lincoln Ave., Venice. Twenty-five present or former girl students of the bride stood on either side of the white carpeted aisle, holding burning tapers, during the evening ceremony.

A double ring service was performed at 7 o'clock by the Rev. Martin Mangan and the Rev. Bernard Meyer. Sister Catherine Odeleher presided at the organ and played several wedding selections prior to the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a white floor-length gown of dacron polyester organza. The fitted bodice, featuring a high collar and long sheer sleeves, was lavishly appliqued with Chantilly lace and sequins. The trimming was repeated on the full skirt.

The detachable chapel-length train was secured to a large fabric bow at the back waist. Her melody-length veil of bridal illusion was edged with scalloped lace and held in place with a Juliet cap. She carried a cascade of orchids, stephanotis and greenery.

Mary Ellen Green was honor attendant and Misses Lee Ann and Vicki Burgener, sisters of the bride, served as bridesmaids.

They were attired alike in full-length dresses made with ivory chiffon fitted bodices and full skirts of yellow, peach and green flowered chiffon over peau de soie. Long full sleeves were gathered at the wrists and a green satin ribbon marked the natural waistlines, terminating at the back in a bow.

Each girl held a circular nosegay of white carnations arranged on a white candleholder and centered with a lighted candle.

The groom chose Tom Curtis as his best man, Daniel Rapp and Harry Garren Jr., the groom's son, were groomsmen.

Mrs. Burgener chose for her daughter's wedding a formal length gown of blue satin fashion

Boat races topic of Breakfast Kiwanis

Plans for the annual boat races July 15 at Horseshoe Lake, sponsored by the Granite City Kiwanis Club was reviewed by one of its members and a past president, Darrell Weible, at the Thursday meeting of the newly-formed Breakfast Kiwanis Club.

Junior College only not available either to the university or to existing junior colleges — could be flexibility, could result if a separate, permanent, insured teaching staff was hired by the junior college.

From the standpoint of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, a cooperative arrangement would be desirable for several reasons. Most pointedly, the decline in enrollment which the university has experienced during the past two years has relieved the enrollment pressure on staff resources which are devoted to providing liberal arts education to freshmen and sophomore students, and involvement with the new junior college would provide new and challenging areas of work for the faculty.

In addition, several university departments have been developing proposals relating to the education of teachers for college classes. Direct experience with junior college students and programs would serve to strengthen these graduate programs.

If cooperative arrangements in the areas of audio-visual, library services and computer could be negotiated, the combined junior college and university would be able to strengthen service in these areas for both institutions.

With the exception of a vocational educational program, SIUE has the basic capabilities to provide all educational services needed by a junior college. As a result, a broad range of alternatives can be considered in formulating plans for cooperation.

Obviously, the choice of the extent of cooperative mode would lie with a junior college. The District Board, since questions of educational and fiscal policy would be involved.

Nonetheless it can be noted that at a minimal level, it would be relatively simple to allow college students to enroll in Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville courses through a contractual arrangement between the two schools.

From this minimal involvement, the options range through sharing existing facilities and programs to experimental departures from standard practices in the spirit of the Newman report.

Should a newly-formed district wish to consider comprehensive educational experimentation, the university could assist in designing a radically different institution.

As a first step toward cooperation with this potential new Junior College District, SIUE would gladly assist in developing the initial planning documents for a new junior college.

The Junior College District could erect an "Educational Service Center" on university land, convenient to university facilities.

The Center would contain administrative offices, counselors, tutorial services, self-instruction facilities and areas for informal student-staff interaction.

The purpose of the Center would be to provide a central coordinating point for industrial operations at a number of locations scattered through the district.

Students would be counseled and advised on their educational needs and on available programs at various institutions at the center.

Students might attend classes in various communities in either leased classrooms or in spaces made available by churches, businesses, schools and other interested organizations.

SIUE could provide basic liberal arts instruction through contracts either for specific courses requested by the junior college or for individual student attendance in courses offered in the regular university schedule.

Vocational and technical instruction could be delivered in cooperation with other junior colleges and, the local high schools, and, most significantly, with proprietary schools in the metropolitan area.

Under such an arrangement, capital costs would be minimized, program flexibility would be maximized, and the cost to the taxpayers might well be less than half that to residents of the Belleville and Lewis and Clark Districts.

The Illinois House on Friday approved 117-21 a bill to permit teachers to bargain collectively and strike legally. At present, strikes by any public employees are against the law. The House also appropriated $245 million for the state's teacher retirement fund.

The Illinois House has approved 122-28 legislation to freeze property taxes through out the state at 1973 levels through 1976. The bill was sent to the Senate.

Augustine's motor hotel, Belleville, became a franchised Ramada Inn on Friday.

The Illinois House voted 107-21 to create a three-member state consumer advocate office.

The Illinois Senate approved 31-10 and 30-6 Friday bills to limit abortions in the first three months of pregnancy and to require that all abortions be performed by physicians in state-licensed facilities.

The Senate also passed 35-6 Friday a plan to allocate $16 million in state anti-narcotics taxes to counties to partly offset $51 million lost when they were forbidden to charge for tax collection costs.

Reports on Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce's activities and goals will be made by 10 committee chairmen at a general membership meeting at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 20, at Tempel's Smorgasbord. Jack Dempsey is chairman of the meeting.

The committee heads are Dale Kaeshofer, Ambassador; C. E. Blankenship, governmental affairs; Henry Gabriel, downtown development; Homer Huber, education; Dale Atmette, environmental control; Norman Hall, highway traffic and transportation; Richard Kerch, sewers and drainage; Carl Mathias, industrial development; Paul Kelly, manufacturing; and Leo Konzen, junior college study.

Federal Power Commission approval of a 73% natural gas price boost, disclosed May 30, is expected to lead to sharp increase in what consumers pay for the fuel.

The U. S. and Japan announced Friday that the Japanese will reduce their imports of U. S. scrap iron and steel.

U. S. Senator Charles H. Percy (R., Illinois) Friday asked for assurance from federal drug fighters that they would not act to avoid mistaken drug raids in the future. On Saturday, Sen. Percy demanded a detailed explanation from President Nixon on the Watergate case, to show whether White House staff members kept the President unaware of the activities or whether he, Nixon knew and failed to voice disapproval.

Nicholas Byron, Madison County State's attorney, has appointed three full-time assistants to his staff—Ray Buckley and Miss Judy Rozio, both of St. Louis, and P. J. O'Neill of Alton.

Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois was to introduce a bill today to limit campaign spending and contributions. It would place a $5,000 limit on contributions to a candidate's campaign by a single donor, would ban cash contributions of more than $10, would limit overall expenditures to 20 cents for each eligible voter and would require the name, address and Social Security numbers of donors.

The Illinois House passed 131-2 Saturday a bill to establish a new means of financing public schools, with bolstered state aid for lower-income districts.

3 hurt in accident, policeman is kicked
Three persons were injured when the auto of William D. Gaddy, 22, of 1215 Meridian Ave., went out of control and struck the superstructure of the McCabridge Avenue viaduct on Route 265 near Madison at 12:05 a.m. today.

Gaddy was pinned in the car and had to be freed by Madison Fire Department rescue workers. They were on the scene one hour.

Two persons injured were Michael Dunivant, 23, and Miss Fella Trindle, 24, both of 2008 Twelfth St., passengers in the auto.

They were placed in an ambulance and taken to Barnes Hospital. Gaddy allegedly used profanity toward Madison Detective Paul Bargiel and kicked his face several times.

Bargiel's glasses were broken and he suffered a cut to his chin. Bargiel charged the man with battery.

At the hospital, Gaddy was treated for a three-inch cut to his left jaw. X-rays were taken and Gaddy left after signing his own release.

Dunivant was admitted with cuts to his nose and the inside of his lower lip. Miss Trindle suffered a two-inch cut to the forehead, abrasions on the outside of her knees and left ankle. She was admitted.

MADISON STREET GRADER levels fill in the rear yard of Madison Second Ward Alderman Richard Kisser at 1804 Second St., Madison, Thursday afternoon. The city equipment, operated by Charles Voloski, took about 30 minutes to spread two tons of dirt in exchange for several truckloads of dirt which he gave the city, Kisser said.

TRUCKLOAD OF DIRT is loaded from the rear yard of Richard Kisser, Second Ward alderman of Madison, into a Madison street department truck for delivery to the city's baseball diamond at Second Street and Highland Avenue where it was used for fill. Kisser said he exchanged the dirt for use of a city street grader to level fill in his yard.

BASEBALL DIAMOND REPAIR is made at Second Street and Highland Avenue in Madison with fill provided by Second Ward Alderman Richard Kisser. The alderman said he exchanged the dirt, the excess of two loads which he personally ordered, in return for services of a city street grader to level part of his back yard at 1804 Second St. The truck driver at left is Jerry Verba.

Police Explorers guests at academy training

Bomb and arson, narcotics, pursuit, search, crowd control, self defense, criminal investigation, weapons, chemical agents and disaster training were among subjects discussed Saturday and Sunday at the St. Louis Police Academy attended by nine members of Explorer Post 10-33 who were guests of Explorer Post 10-4, which had 21 members attending.

Instructors at the academy, along with agents of the FBI and key members of the St. Louis County Police Department served as instructors. Following the two days of training a dinner for the 273 police explorers from the greater St. Louis area was held at Stouffer's Riverfront Inn Sunday evening. Certificates of training were presented.

Attending from Post 10-33 sponsored by the Granite City Police Department were Bruce VanMetre, Bryant Moore, Bruce Gordon, Tim Vizer, Dave Schuerke, Don Sparks, Richard Bunch, Scott Wiseman and Steve Fischer.

Post 10-33 meets on the second and fourth Tuesdays at the Granite City Police Department and visitors are welcome.

Attending from Post 10-4 sponsored by the Madison Police Department were Randy Affolter, Chris Champion, Tim Ballwe, Dale Bogavich, Brad Crown, Bob Dixon, Keith and Kevin Hewlett, Dave Jeffries, Kevin Kearns, Mike Siebert, Jack Small, Steve Smith, Jeff Tolliver, Rick Walker, Mike Wilmore, Steve Winter and Randy Steele.

Adults attending with the two local posts were Officers Donald and Charles Bridick, J. Richard Hooks and Walter "Mick" Strange, all members of the Post 10-4 committee.

Post 10-4 meets at the Madison Police Department on the second and fourth Wednesdays and visitors are welcome.

County amounted to $19,182,307, or 55.2% of the total. The St. Clair County total was $2,857,036 or 8.2%.

Edwardsville led all cities in the two-county area with a total income of $9,979,372 from the University, East St. Louis, with $1,519,890, led the total in St. Clair County.

Dirt exchanged for grading of alderman's yard

Use of a Madison-owned street department grader to level a dirt fill in the rear yard of Second Ward Alderman Richard Kisser, 1804 Second St., was in exchange for several truckloads of dirt which Kisser gave the city, the alderman explained Friday.

Kisser said the dirt, the major part of two loads which he had purchased at a cost of $36, was needed by the city for fill on the city's baseball diamond at Second Street and Highland Avenue.

The city-owned grader, operated by Charles Voloski, graded the fill in Kisser's yard Thursday afternoon.

Kisser said the use of city equipment in his yard came about like this:

"I have made a $1,200 improvement to my property, including a new driveway and new sidewalks.

"I had a low spot in my back yard as the result of some concrete work, and I ordered two loads of dirt at $18 for each load. But it was only after I got the dirt that I realized I would need only a small part of it."

"I was talking to the superintendent of streets (Elmer Smith) and he told me that the street department needed some dirt for fill work."

"I made an agreement with him that if he would spread about two tons of the dirt for me, the city could have the rest of the dirt without charge."

"I estimate the dirt I gave the city was worth about $30. The grading work by the city grader took about 30 minutes."

A Madison city truck picked up the excess dirt in Kisser's yard Friday morning and dumped it at the Second Street baseball diamond.

Comment and Analysis

June 4, 1973

(Four comments by the Press-Record Springfield bureau)

Inappropriate time to permit longer, wider or heavier trucks

In all the thousands of bills which come before the Illinois General Assembly each session, only a few attract great public attention, but sometimes it is those regarded as minor bills which have the potential for most affecting the citizenry.

Examples are proposals to permit longer, wider and heavier trucks on Illinois highways and to permit increases in speed limits. Those proposals, offered for the benefit of special interests rather than the public interest, are being considered by the Legislature as usual.

One such bill would permit trucks to be five feet longer than at present; anyone who has passed some of the long vehicles now in operation knows how difficult it is: another five feet would add to that difficulty, besides which it would make turns by those vehicles even more difficult and dangerous.

Another bill would permit mobile homes 14 feet wide to be transported on Illinois highways. The present limit is 12 feet, which is the width of most traffic lanes. A 12-foot wide load in a 12-foot lane leaves no margin for error; authorizing loads two feet wider would be ridiculous.

There is a steady deterioration of highways already from loads greater than those for which roads were engineered, and even with the current high level of gasoline taxes there are insufficient funds to repair or rebuild all the roads that need improvement. Permitting heavier vehicles would only invite more rapid road deterioration.

Editors of Illinois newspapers attending the recent Illinois Editors' Traffic Safety Seminar sponsored by the Chicago Motor Club at Decatur went on record unanimously opposing "the adoption of any law or amendment which would relax the present limitations upon the weight or dimensions of motor vehicles operated on the public streets and highways" of this state.

Citizens in general, who drive or ride on the streets and highways of the state every day, may join in also by calling or writing their legislators to let them know they expect the lawmakers to vote the motorist's interest.

The editors also agreed that any bill to increase speed limits on expressways — there's currently one to boost the limit to 75 m.p.h. — should apply only to automobiles and not to such other vehicles as trucks or cars towing trailers.

It would seem that this is not the time to increase speed limits even for autos, when petroleum shortages are threatened and it clearly requires more fuel to go a mile at high speed than at medium speed.

Sometimes the General Assembly does more for the people by defeating bad bills than it does by approving good ones. Proposals to permit longer, wider and heavier trucks and to increase expressway speed limits are in this bad bill category and ought to be defeated.

Elected education board differs from intent of Constitution

FEW issues are more confused in the 1973 session of the Illinois Legislature than that concerning the creation of a state Board of Education. A creation of the new Illinois constitution, the board will replace the existing office of state superintendent of public instruction.

Left up to the Legislature is the method of selection of the board and the specific definition of its duties. The basic, and foremost decision, to be made is whether the board should be appointed by the governor, elected, or a combination of the two. We feel that the board should be appointed by the governor.

This is a position generally supported by educational groups and by such organizations as the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce. They feel that such an approach would open the way for an orderly planning for development of a sound and progressive school system in Illinois.

A prime reason for the action of the Constitutional Convention in doing away with the state superintendent of public instruction as an elective office, was to divorce education from politics.

For the Legislature to provide for election of members of the board would be a reversal of the intention of the Constitutional Convention. There would, in essence, be no change from the present situation which has been determined to be unsatisfactory.

It is a practical standpoint an election of members of a state Board of Higher Education would be meaningless. Voters could scarcely be expected to carefully compare the backgrounds and records of nominated candidates.

Such a board would be a weak one. There would be no direct line of responsibility.

By placing responsibility for selection of the board upon the governor the Legislature would be making him accountable for the process of education in Illinois.

Public education ranks with welfare as the main area of spending in state government. It is proper that the state's chief executive be directly accountable for its functioning.

Incredible that some school bus drivers unfit to drive autos

A RECENT story by Cooley News Service reporter Joan Muraro revealed the disturbing fact that many persons driving school buses in Illinois already have lost their automobile driver's licenses.

It is incredible that someone who has been found at fault in driving a car should be permitted to drive a school bus, filled with children.

A review by the office of State Schools Superintendent J. Bakalis has resulted in the suspension of 10 such bus drivers, but 800 other cases still are undergoing investigation.

This is a situation for concern. There are already far too many accidents involving school buses. Certainly every effort should be made to weed out the incompetents by the time schools begin the fall term. The loopholes for errant drivers stem from vague regulations in effect for years. They spell out the requirements a potential bus driver must have for state certification, but include no reference to possible violations incurred while driving a car.

As a result many a man or woman whose auto driving license has been suspended or revoked, still drives a school bus. A tightening-up policy on certification is under way and certainly should be pushed with all possible haste.

This is also a matter that the Legislature should look into. Specific legislation to spell out the requirements for bus drivers and to provide for automatic suspension of any with driving convictions is in order.

Illinois should not tolerate a situation where the lives of thousands of children are entrusted to drivers who cannot operate their own cars in a safe and legal manner.

Voluntary action center able to recruit millions

By JAMES CARV
Cooley News Service

WASHINGTON — This may come as a shock. Supposedly cynical, self-centered, commercial Americans are volunteering by the millions to work for nothing to help other people.

More than 4 million of them have done so since Feb. 20, 1970, says the National Center for Voluntary Action.

That's the date NCVA officially came into existence. Since that day the center has moved far down the line toward its goal of establishing a national network of voluntary action centers.

So far 172 communities have affiliated with the national center and 75 others are in the process of doing so. Douglas K. Kinsey, NCVA president, believes this total will eventually increase to between 750 and 800 local affiliates and cover 83 per cent of the total population of the United States.

What is the National Center for Voluntary Action and how did it come into existence? Perhaps there is no complete answer. Author Richard C. Cornille is believed to have been the wallspring for the current movement toward volunteerism. He explored the idea in his book, "Reclaiming the American Dream."

President Nixon took up the idea, too, in some of his 1968 campaign speeches. After his inauguration he created a Cabinet committee on voluntary action under the direction of George Romney, then secretary of housing and urban development and now chairman-elect of NCVA's Board of Directors.

The Cabinet committee's work led to the establishment of the national center as a private, independent organization working to tap one of the nation's most precious resources — the desire of its people to reach out and help others.

If you watch football you no doubt recall seeing repetitive advertising blurbs featuring prominent players pointing a finger and urging people to volunteer, saying, "We need you."

This was followed up by spots on 750 television and 4,500 radio stations after the football season, plus 1.5 million lines of newspaper and magazine ads and posters — in all a $25 million advertising campaign provided a catalyst to get the volunteer movement under way.

The success has been spectacular. The state of the 4 million who responded have been funneled into an almost endless variety of useful activities.

Included have been such things as setting up recycling centers for glass, paper and metal; creating "nest pockets" in empty lots; removing debris from rivers and streams; tutoring younger children in reading, arithmetic and English as a second language; answering hot lines, working as aides in hospitals and clinics; helping retarded children; helping renovate housing in need of repair; providing companionship for the sick, old, the shut-in, and motherless and fatherless children and serving as camp counselors.

NCVA President Kinsey believes such outpourings of donated efforts are something in his unpretentious but comfortable office overlooking a busy downtown Washington thoroughfare, he says:

"I relate it to the fact that when Europeans first came to America it was a virgin land. If they didn't work together they would expire very quickly."

It came from raising barns together, raising crops together, organizing volunteer fire departments — even the early schools were a voluntary, locally organized affair."

Audiences said to be starved for constructive 'authority figures'

One of the institutions of higher learning in Illinois, the University of Chicago, includes on its faculty a scholar-authority on films who has provided insight into some of the trends affecting motion pictures.

He believes that if Hollywood wants to recapture its glory years—when movie stars were as important as politicians and the American film was a true mass art—it will have to produce films that allow the hero, man or woman, to rebuild society, not merely reject it.

He adds that the decline of the star system shows the extent to which movies, however much they may have increased in sophistication, no longer communicate with a mass public.

Movies are specialized today in the view of John G. Caweltz, professor of English and author of a highly-regarded 1970 study of the western novel and film.

Different kinds of films are created to appeal to particular interest groups: the horror film, the teenage monster freak; the black action film for many of the urban audiences; the Walt Disney comedy or drama for suburban gatherings.

The few exceptions are largely up-to-date versions of traditional genres, he says; and the only great stars are survivors from an earlier period—Marlon Brando, who became a star in the 1950s, and John Wayne, who has been a superstar since his performance in the 1939 version of "Stagecoach."

There are many great screen actors performing today, Caweltz says, but almost no great stars.

It's possible, he feels, that television has taken over much of the role of mass medium once occupied by movies. "Nevertheless," Caweltz says, "it is interesting to speculate as to what kind of films might produce a new generation of stars comparable to those of the 1920s, 1930s and 1940s."

"Several conditions are necessary to produce a film star," he observes. "First of all, there must be a need for social identification. The audience must find a vicarious fulfillment by watching a star perform."

"Secondly, there is a need for actors and actresses who project the star image, people who look and act like stars."

Thirdly, stars must have an appropriate series of vehicles, the film genres or types, in which they are allowed to act like stars. A star in the wrong kind of film story won't come across as a star.

"Finally, external machinery is necessary to create and maintain the star image—such as his personal appearance, tour, film magazines, the entire paraphernalia of the 1930s Hollywood era."

In that period, Caweltz says, stars like Clark Gable, Humphrey Bogart, James Cagney, Marlon Brando, Jean Paul Belmondo and others gave audiences something with which to identify.

They were figures of romance and adventure who offered vicarious excitement and rebellion to an age that was still fundamentally secure in its moralistic vision of a benevolent, orderly society.

That vision became obsolete with the atomic bomb, in the presence of which human beings can no longer feel basic security about the world order, he contends.

Marlon Brando and James Dean, the two greatest male stars of the 1950s and among the last great Hollywood stars of all, reflected this new sense of insecurity and chaos in their star personalities, he says. They were lost, angry men looking for some spark of meaning in a world that had suddenly become full of emptiness, and thus they helped the public to identify its own increasing anxiety about the future.

Brando and Dean were best at expressing a despairing, hopeless rejection of the facile optimism of the moralistic tradition. But, Caweltz says, most men cannot sustain the vision of chaos and futility. They require some model of with which to identify themselves.

Perhaps, he says, the sports world, with its highly ordered rules and its clear and certain patterns of victory and defeat, through the medium of television, taken the place of movies as the greatest mass entertainment.

Coaches and players of professional football, ice hockey, basketball and baseball have come to occupy something of the place in the public imagination held by the great movie stars of an earlier period.

A Vince Lombardi, for example, might be for some people a Lionel Barrymore-father figure. And a Mark Spitz could well fill the role of a modern Clark Gable.

Possibly, Caweltz says, the movies may create a new mass art and new stars if they can create meaningful and heroic images of social reconstruction, for this is possibly the greatest hope needed by the public today.

"The enormous success of 'The Godfather' must have been due in part to its presentation of heroic figures using illegal power and violence to create order and security within the 'family,' Caweltz observes.

He says: "I sense that the public is starved for such images of authority and order, and a series of such films might give rise to a new kind of star personality."

Unfortunately, Caweltz adds, there are great potential dangers lurking in such personalities, for they could be harbingers of totalitarianism.

He says: "I hope instead that our democratic traditions are still strong enough to generate a new kind of heroic ideal, a vision of social reconstruction without totalitarian power and scapegoats. Such a vision would be a great contribution to a people beset on every side by a sense of social and moral disintegration."

It may well be that the exact combination of conditions that came together in the 1930s may never come again, Caweltz says. In that case, he concludes, America may never again witness the movie star-system.

He recently is writing a book about the varieties of the popular literature and films: gangster and detective stories, westerns, romantic stories and adventure tales.

State needs to finish 1,150-mile supplemental freeway system

GOV. Dan Walker's proposed supplemental highway program is inadequate.

It falls far short of the state's need and, unless revised, would interrupt the steady progress Illinois has made in recent years in catching up with other states in providing new or updated highways adequate to today's needs.

Walker's proposed plan is not only a reversal of careful highway planning, designed to meet the needs of Illinois for years to come, but it is also a renege on campaign promises.

Walker in his campaign walks about Illinois promising better highways. Now by a hopscotch process he is trying to do a little for everybody, but winds up doing very little for anybody.

We agree with House Speaker W. Robert Blair that Walker's proposed $495 million program is "limp and unimaginative." The need is far greater than that and previous planning has already provided the basic financial means to complete the necessary 1,150-mile state highway program prepared by engineers and approved by previous legislatures.

Doctors probe mystery of sudden infant death

By IRWIN J. POLK,
MD, MPH

Copley News Service

Car skids to a halt at the emergency room. Young mother rushes into the hospital with her baby clutched tightly in her arms. "I can't wake him up," she screams. "I can't wake him up."

Nurse takes the child gently from the mother, lays it on an exam table. Doctor, appearing quickly, makes a brief, thorough exam, and nods to the nurse. The three-month-old infant is dead, has been for several hours, still, lifeless, but without a gleam to indicate the cause of the tragedy.

This case is not unusual. Each year in the United States alone, more than 10,000 babies die this way, in their sleep, quietly — mysteriously. Each morning in 27 American homes, the tragedy is repeated. An infant is found dead without apparent cause. Given a name: sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS).

Sudden infant death syndrome is indeed a tragedy. Its victims are healthy infants, usually under six months old, usually about three months. Typically, they had been put to sleep apparently healthy only to be found dead five to six hours later. The problem is worldwide; it is known in England as a "cot death" and is reported from most parts of the industrialized world. It affects all social and economic groups, but seems more common at the lower end of these scales. It is reported in all races, all seasons, all climates, all hours of the day and all days of the week. In short, sudden death can occur to anyone's infant, any time, anywhere in the world.

Interest was first focused on sudden infant death syndrome in the early 1950's. Since then, there has been much investigation but little return. There have been of blind alleys explored and much negative information is available. SIDS is NOT the result of suffocation; it is not a contagious disease nor a hereditary one. It is not the result of long-standing, undiagnosed illness, of enlargement of the thymus gland, nor the result of any of a list of known causes for infant death. Sudden infant death syndrome is a separate problem by itself.

Five babies were seen because of episodes in which they stopped breathing and turned blue at the Department of Pediatrics, Upstate Medical Center, Syracuse, New York. Each of these babies was studied carefully and monitored for breathing rate and depth of sleep with electronic equipment. These five babies were found to have periods of deep sleep during which the breathing stopped but started again normally after a few seconds. The breathless periods were found to occur more often when the children had head colds. So the observers suggested that, although many children have brief lapses of breathing during deep sleep, some children, especially when they have colds, may have more frequent, longer breathless spells. After some of these breathless episodes, breathing does not begin again in children who die of SIDS. This apparently is what happens. For, of the five babies studied at Syracuse, two eventually died of SIDS.

The disease is still a mystery. But efforts are being made throughout the country to investigate every infant death completely. Funds have been made available by the National Institutes of Health for some of this work. In addition, volunteer organizations have been formed to promote research into the problem and to offer help to the parents of its victims. Two of these groups are the National Foundation for Sudden Infant Death, 1501 Broadway, New York 10036 and the Guild for Infant Survival, Inc. of 7501 Liberty Road, Baltimore, Maryland, 21207. These groups are out to save those 27 American babies daily who die of sudden infant death syndrome.

DOT plan involves the people

By JESSICA WEBER
Copley News Service

SPRINGFIELD — The state Department of Transportation "wants to be the good guy," according to John Burke of the public relations department; and to that end, is developing the Action Plan. The Action Plan is a device to put into writing each step of the process which leads to the execution of an actual program; and to build into the process more citizen involvement where it will do the most good.

Actually, the DOT has come a long way from its image of a decade ago of road-builders who "just put our blinders on, get the bulldozer revved up, and away we go," most notably in its relocation assistance program and increasing environmental concern; and it might be more accurate to say it wants to become a better guy.

The Action Plan isn't expected to result in a complete overhaul of the department's present processes, or anything like it; but rather will probably result in alteration and refinement of parts of the process.

The federal government has required each state to write an action plan (and could cut off federal funds for any non-complying state), which is to include four points:

One of those points is to involve people, agencies, and groups in the earlier phases of transportation planning, to assure greater citizen voice in the decision-making process.

The department right now is seeking public involvement in the writing of the plan to make possible greater public involvement in specific projects executed under the plan. District personnel are talking with such diverse groups as Farm Bureaus, utility companies, civic clubs, and environmental groups; and the department is seeking input from individuals on the plan.

The department wants to know things like where in the planning process do you want to be involved; what kinds of input do you want; and what form should this input take (letters, hearings).

The department also would like to know how you would assess past transportation planning; what you think of public hearing and information meetings; and how it can help you become more involved and better informed; and "anything at all that's on your mind," said Burke.

"We'll do everything that we can in listening to the public in writing this plan," he said.

Anyone with ideas on transportation (not just highways) — that part of the old image — can write Ronald W. Houska, Transportation Administration Building, 2300 S. 31st St., Springfield, 62704.

'RULES OF THE ROAD' New edition should be less confusing

By RANDY THOMAS
Copley News Service

SPRINGFIELD — Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett says the current edition of "Rules of the Road" has to go.

Compiled by Howlett's Republican predecessor John W. Lewis, the 116-page pamphlet has for nearly a year been the text book for more than one million Illinois motorists required each year to take the driver's license examination.

An excellent "promotional" piece, Howlett says the book has too many irrelevant color pictures and 20 beautiful motoring scenes. There are also portraits of Lewis, former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and Assistant Sec. of State Edmund Kurchaski. "I don't think it's necessary to know what we look like to pass the exam," Howlett said recently.

Distributed free of charge, the publishing cost was $273,804 — just over nine cents a copy for 3 million printed. A similar edition printed in 1968 by the late Paul Powell cost about half as much — $195,663 for some two million copies printed.

"Mr. Howlett feels the cost is ridiculous," explained George Kreker, supervisor of public information for the secretary of state's office. But that's not all that's bothering Howlett.

Aimed at the 11th grade educational level, the book is apparently confusing, stimulating a number of personal complaints from veteran drivers who've recently failed the test on the first attempt. Nearly everyone passes the second time around.

But even so, Howlett has refrained from blaming failures on his predecessor. "I'm convinced most people fail the test because they are nervous and tense," the former state auditor said.

He has announced the appointment of a 10-member task force composed of driver education teachers from all over the state to rewrite the "Rules of the Road." In the past the book was written by the planning and research division of the secretary's office.

Though in agreement with Howlett on the need to revise the book, Chief Driver's License Examiner Ed Stubblefield said the current edition actually has drawn fewer complaints than previous editions. In fact, he said other states have acclaimed the book and added "people seem to like the color."

The failure rate on the license exam has remained about constant, said Stubblefield, with about 10 per cent of those taking the test last year flunking at least one section of the four-part exam on the first attempt. Less than three per cent actually failed to get a license.

State law requires all drivers to take the test every nine years. Drivers over 69 are tested every three years.

The test consists of a written road sign identification quiz. A twenty-question multiple choice section, a vision test and, of course, the driving test.

Applicants must score 100 per cent on the sign test but four mistakes are allowed on the multiple choice section. The test may be taken three times within a year.

The rules of the road book is revised annually or when needed to keep up with changes in the law.

The most frequently missed multiple choice question, according to Stubblefield, is what do you do when making a left turn.

The choices are (a) flash headlights to warn other drivers you are turning, (b) give the right-of-way to other drivers and wait until it is safe to turn, (c) sound your horn, then go ahead and make the turn and (d) turn quickly and get out of the way of traffic.

Stubblefield said the answer is (b) and is based quite extensively in the guidebook though it took over the state to rewrite the "Rules of the Road." By the way, if you selected answer "b," congratulations.

Also misused frequently are several multiple choice questions on pavement lane markings. For instance, what does a double yellow line mean? Or when is a single broken white line or dash used?

The problem here, said Stubblefield, is that these markings have changed in the past several years and people don't read the book as carefully as they should. He said pavement markings will probably be emphasized more in the new book.

On the sign test, questions concerning an orange diamond sign seem to present the most problems. The sign warns of construction ahead and differs from the traditional warning sign only by the color.

Most failures on the driving test occur as a result of people turning into the wrong lanes. Few people flunk the vision test.

"The purpose of the license test is not to keep people from passing or punishment," commented Kreker while thumbing through a file of complaints. Most of the complaints, however, could more accurately be described as suggestions for improvement of "Rules of the Road."

For example, on page 28 ten warning signs are pictured in black and yellow. But only four of the signs are identified as to their exact meaning.

Another person took issue with the book's definition of right-of-way, which reads "The right of one vehicle or pedestrian to proceed in a lawful manner in preference to another vehicle or pedestrian approaching under circumstances of direction, speed and proximity as to give rise to danger of collision unless one grants precedence to another."

Confused? Three diagrams on page 61 show the applicant exactly what to do when turning. But as one observer pointed out, the diagrams are incomplete and vague, never indicating the exact lane one should enter after completing a turn.

Another complaint about the book's organization suggests specific data about what appears on each of the tests should be closer to the front.

The new pamphlet, complete with a new test, should be ready for publication within three months. In compliance with a campaign promise, neither Howlett nor anyone else's portrait will peer from the pages.

Color will be used only when necessary for identification purposes in the case of road signs.

Because many persons have complained about the length, the new edition will have fewer pages. Where as the current book takes about 45 minutes to read, the new one should take about 20 minutes to flip through.

The shape will change so that it may be carried easily, perhaps in a shirt pocket.

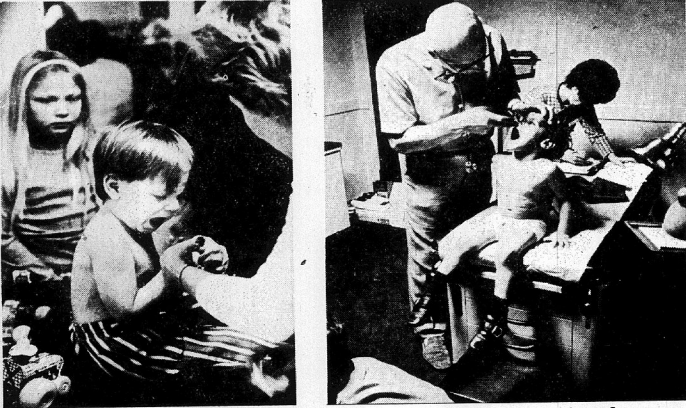

Information will be confined basically to the questions that appear on the test. All other information will be placed in the rear of the book.

In addition, according to Kreker, the sections on vehicle equipment and insurance laws and regulations will be more detailed.

Finally, the experts predict the price tag should be down almost a third from the present cost.

Volunteers operate 'well-child clinic'

By JANET ROHAN
Copley News Service

ELGIN — Good medical care is not only for those who can afford it.

This is the philosophy behind the Elgin Well-Child Conference, a clinic started last summer to provide health and referral service to Elgin children. Located at 101 S. Grove, the clinic is open every Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m.

In that two-hour period about 35 children are examined, "and we haven't had to turn anybody away," said Christine Virgil, director of the conference.

Physical immunizations and medical counseling for children from birth through school age are provided to children "whose parents cannot afford" medical care for their children. Some of the school-age children treated at the conference have not had any immunizations.

Some 100 volunteer nurses, physicians, interpreters and "play ladies" participate in the conference. About 20 physicians provide physical exams and supervise the nurses and another 26 take on referrals.

According to Christine, the atmosphere is very personal. "No one wears uniforms. People are very receptive to us and if nothing else we can listen to their problems."

Families may be recommended either through school nurses or other community agencies and no fee is charged to qualifying families.

The family doctor relationship isn't quite the same for most children treated at the conference. The youngsters may see different doctors, depending what week the patient comes to the clinic. Also, if the child has a medical problem, the youngster may be referred to another physician for that particular problem.

Christine considers the conference "a success" who originally volunteered are still there.

The conference's budget for the year was $7,000 and most of this money was raised from last year's "Walk For Hunger." The group hopes to raise its budget to $20,000. This year's Walk For Hunger also raised funds for the conference and a few area organizations have raised money for the clinic.

With a larger budget, the clinic hopes to be open more hours and to provide programs on family planning, prenatal care and venereal disease.

The space is donated and the volunteers receive no pay. Children treated at the clinic not only receive the care of a licensed physician, but they often get the sympathy that makes that pain a little more bearable even when a doctor quickly walks out to see his next patient while the parent is left with a screaming child.

Because the clinic is open at night, many fathers also go with the children. And when the youngster arrives, "the play ladies" help make the experience as pleasant as possible.

Eye in the sky

SPRINGFIELD — It's hard to argue with an airplane. If you don't believe it, just ask one of the over 84,000 speedsters apprehended in Illinois since the implementation of the air speed check in 1959.

Out of this number, over 99 per cent have been convicted, according to Sgt. Fred Pfeiffer of the Illinois State Police, Department of Law Enforcement.

Three planes, located in Carbondale, Aurora and Springfield, clock speeds seven days per week, weather permitting. The system works something like this:

Two uniformed state police pilots, one at the controls and the other observing, circle designated road zones clockwise the time it takes a motorist to cross two lines. These lines, painted white, are 18 inches wide and 660 feet apart. If, for example, it takes a motorist 9 seconds to make the 660-foot course, he is traveling 50 miles per hour.

On the other hand, if he makes it in 4 seconds, he's flying at over 112 m.p.h.

After making the offense to the accompanying state policeman on the ground, the pilot pulls out of the circling pattern and follows the car until the ticket is written.

Pilots for the program are commercial and instrument-rated members of the department. They fly for five-hour periods at a height of 1,000 feet and a relatively low speed. They do not fly days when the wind velocity exceeds 20 knots or inclement weather prevails. Each plane is used for one-third of the geographic area of the state.

The number of speedsters netted in any given day depends upon the time of both the day and year and the weather, according to Pfeiffer. No correlation between the area of surveillance and number of tickets written can be made.

Is the air speed check superior to the vascor method? Pfeiffer thinks so. "The radar method indicates a certain speed at a certain time whereas the air check clocks the speed over a certain time period. The plane is also less conspicuous."

Flying in circles all day can become boring but the pilot and plane often see another side of duty. Just recently they were used to check flood dikes along the Mississippi River. They also see action in emergencies such as man-hunts and bank robberies where speed, an ability to see for a distance, and a two-way radio are essential.

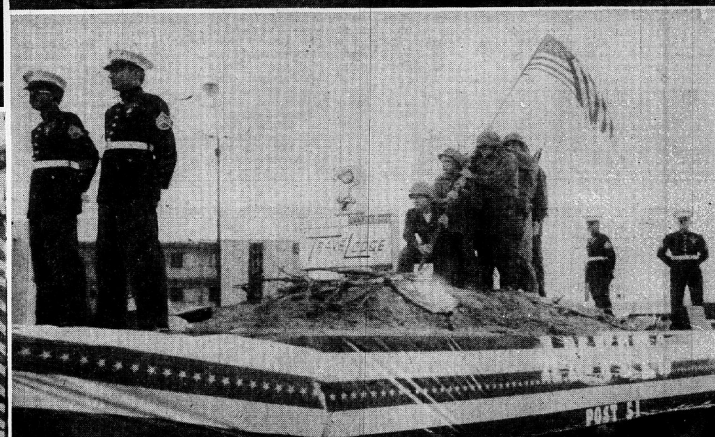

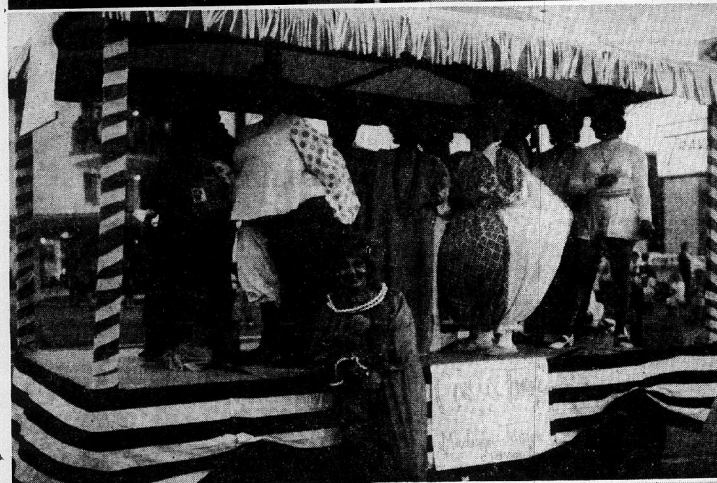

TRAFFIC CHECK --- This bird's-eye view shows one of the three planes operated by the state of Illinois to check for speeders. Two uniformed state police pilots clock the time it takes the vehicle to pass between the two white lines and can calculate the speed at which it's traveling.

EMERGENCY TECHNIQUES are practiced in the disaster center at St. Elizabeth Hospital, where medical personnel posing as victims of tornadoes in the Greenville and Dehl areas of Illinois are shown being treated. Sister M. Theodore, IV therapist, is in foreground. Visible at the rear are nursing students from Olin Vocation School in Alton. The realistic victims are Mrs. Mary Heagy and Mrs. Barb Asbeck, whose injuries were created with makeup at Mercer Mortuary.

SERIOUSLY HURT. Mrs. Wilma Norman, an administrative secretary at St. Elizabeth Hospital, portrays a patient suffering a skull fracture in the Dehl tornado. She was quickly processed through the Triage area (sorting) and placed in the hospital's Intensive Care Unit. Other victims sustained burns, ruptured spleen and fractures of the legs, arms and ribs.

Hospital responds to simulated and highly realistic 'disaster'

By VALERIE EVENEDEN
Press-Record Staff Writer

One segment of the Illinois network of hospital trauma centers tested its ability to accept, process and treat victims of a large-scale disaster in a realistic exercise held Thursday.

Eight hospitals in a five-county area participated in the simulated disaster.

Main trauma facilities, located at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Granite City, Alton Memorial and St. Joseph hospitals in Alton, and Wood River Township Hospital received seriously injured victims resulting from two simulated tornadoes supposedly occurring only 15 minutes apart near Dehl and Greenville, Ill.

Forty-four persons were "injured" seriously in the two mock disasters and taken to hospitals in Jersey Community Hospital, Alton Memorial, Alton State Hospital, St. Joseph Hospital, Wood River Township, Ulaul Memorial in Greenville and St. Elizabeth Hospital here.

St. Anthony's Hospital served as a holding facility receiving from the trauma hospitals those diagnosed as nontraumatic.

Through the temporary radio communication network provided by the Egyptian Radio Club, the hospitals—all members of the Area Coordinated Hospital Emergency Service (ACHES)—were able to coordinate efforts to send an equal number of patients to each of the main trauma hospitals.

Bernard T. Pinney, director of safety and security at St. Elizabeth and coordinator of the exercise here, said that, in turn each of the four trauma hospitals was kept from being overcrowded with "injured."

At Alton State, Jersey Community and Ulaul, patients were first stabilized and then transported to one of the main trauma facilities.

Through radio communication, the disposition of the "injured" and status of the emergency at all times, Pinney said.

Among the 44 injured, a total of 28 victims required transfer to a trauma center for simulated specialized care. Eight of those needing immediate aid were brought to the Granite City hospital, the coordinator explained.

Adding to the realism was a simulated 100% occupancy figure at the local hospital which necessitated two of the "injured" being transported to another center, Pinney said.

"Victims" received here also appeared "realistic," the coordinator said, noting that makeup had been skillfully applied to correspond with the type of injury. Assisting was the staff of the Mercer Mortuary.

Serving as "victims" were hospital employees—Barb Asbeck, Mary K. Heagy, Charleen Maxfield, Wilma Norman, Peggy Morris and Nina Kinworthy. Two other "injured" were sent here from the Greenville hospital.

Pinney said that through the efforts of four medical staffs and eight hospitals, a simulated disaster touching two parts of five counties was enacted with a high degree of professionalism, placing care of injured as the top priority.

No city, township or county line was allowed to act as an artificial barrier in providing prompt, effective medical service.

Home owners sue over sewer work repairs

A suit seeking $25,000 in each of two counts has been filed for Roy C. and Patricia Skinner of Alton against G. H. Sternberg & Co. of Granite City and the City of Alton in Madison County Circuit Court.

The complaint alleges that on Sept. 20, 1972, Sternberg employees, working on a sanitary sewer improvement project, entered onto the Skinner property without the owners' consent and damaged a septic tank, causing sewage to back up into the property and rendering it uninhabitable.

It also charges that in constructing the sewer, the firm altered drainage along the property, causing large amounts of water to enter the property. The Skinners also are asking punitive damages.

CIGARETS STOLEN

Burglars took 200 packages of cigarettes valued at $12 from a cigarette machine at the Olympic Service Station, 20th and Adams streets. It was reported at 7:25 a.m. Friday, the front door and the machine were pried open.

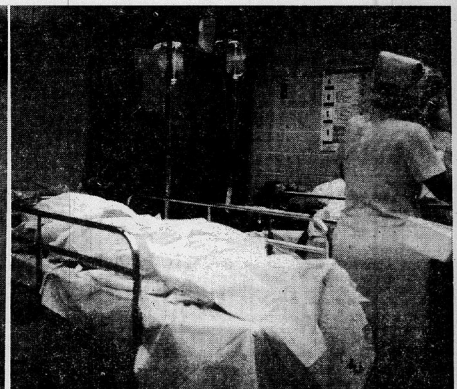

CONSULTATION. Dr. Bernard Lohman, staff radiologist, Dr. Robert Blankenship and Dr. Robert M. Lay, left to right, discuss complications found in one 'tornado victim's' condition before transferring her to the appropriate area for treatment at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Mrs. Nina Kinworthy, safety and security department secretary, poses as the patient. Three main trauma hospitals, including the Granite City facility, plus other area medical centers took part in the mock emergency exercise.

TRANSFER PATIENT. Miss Carol Williams of Greenville, in wheelchair, is brought to St. Elizabeth Hospital by a Donnell's Ambulance Service driver and an unidentified nursing supervisor from Ulaul Memorial Hospital in Greenville. A total of 44 'injured' people participated in the simulated drill.

HOSPITAL CHAPLAIN. the Rev. Damien J. Veary, comforts a victim of the mock disaster, Mrs. Charleen Maxfield, a secretary in the social services department at St. Elizabeth Hospital. Mrs. Genevieve Phillip, R.N., prepares to offer aid to another injured person transferred here from the devastated area.

Flood damage inspections begun throughout state

Teams of state and federal engineers have begun on-site inspections in Illinois communities that suffered an estimated $22 million in damage to public property due to the worst spring flood in more than 200 years.

According to Robert S. Ritz, state coordinating officer and Illinois Civil Defense deputy director, "The additional heavy rains will slow the work of the teams and some inspection must wait until the flood waters run off and uncover the damaged areas."

Ritz explained, "The Illinois Civil Defense Agency is responsible for coordinating claims and assisting local government officials in reporting damage to public property, such as roads, bridges, water treatment systems, sewer systems, public buildings or publicly owned utilities."

Ritz urged that any community, city or county with flood damage to public property or debris clearance problems should contact the civil defense mutual aid regional coordinator in its area as soon as possible so that on-site surveys can be made by the federal and state placement of the damaged facilities.

As a result of this year's record floods along the Illinois and Mississippi rivers, 47 Illinois counties were designated by the President as eligible for federal disaster assistance.

Federal Coordinating Officer Robert E. Connor and his staff are directing the federal effort from a disaster field office in Springfield, located in the state Civil Defense Emergency Operating Center, and are working closely with Ritz to assist the state in recovering from the effects of the disaster.

Early in May a series of ten briefings for local officials were held in cities throughout the flooded areas to provide information on assistance available to flood-damaged communities and to advise what steps must be taken by local government officials to apply for aid from the President's Disaster Relief Fund.

The fund provides grants for removal of debris and restoration and repair of facilities.

The State Civil Defense mutual aid regional coordinators are located in Dixon, Milan, Wheaton, Western Springs, Springfield, Belleville and West Frankfort. They are ready to accept requests for assistance from local governments and assist in the preparation of applications for reimbursement of eligible expenses.

Individual assistance is available to families and businesses which suffered flood losses. Application for such assistance may be made at individual assistance centers located throughout the state. Anyone with questions or desiring assistance may call, toll-free, 1-800-252-8928 (9 a.m. to 5 p.m.—Monday-Friday).

$50,000 suit filed over rail yard mishap

A suit for $50,000 has been filed for Dale Griffin against the Norfolk & Western Railroad in Madison County Circuit Court.

The complaint alleges that on May 14, 1972, Griffin was employed as a carman when he was injured while trying to lift some knuckles. He charges that the knuckles were stored and stacked in a fashion that made them difficult to move and that the company failed to provide a safe place to work.

In loving memory of my darling, FRANK ARTHUR M. NEIDHART, who passed away June 6, 1973.

Time speeds on the years have passed. Since death its gloom it's shadow clings to any place. Within our home where all seemed bright and warm from a shining light. We miss that light and always will.

His vacant place there is none to fill. Down here we mourn but not in vain. For up in heaven we will meet again.

Sadly missed by - WIFE, SON, DAUGHTERS and GRANDCHILDREN

Springfield - The ever-expanding Watergate revelations have not yet touched on any Illinois political scandals.

"I'm confident, as far as the Illinois funds go, that none were linked to Watergate," said Henry Altorfer. "But I can't be positive because they don't earmark the money all the way through."

Altorfer, the Peoria industrialist who sought the Republican nomination for governor in 1969, served as a special assistant to former Commerce Sec. Maurice Stans before resigning the position in 1972 to head the department campaign for the Committee to Re-Elect the President.

Stans has been indicted for allegedly interfering in the Securities and Exchange Commission probe of Robert Vesco, a Texas oilman who contributed $200,000 to the Nixon campaign.

"I can't hold him guilty until he's proven guilty," Altorfer said. "He's a nice guy. You must show me more. My relationship with him made me believe he is an honorable man."

Altorfer said his own campaign committee handled no campaign funds of any size. He sent all of the money to Chicago except for some $10 or $15 contributions, he said, and the Chicago office would pay all of the bills of the campaign.

"Obviously, I don't know what happened at the end of the road," he said. "But there has been no connection with Illinois money and Watergate."

Although Altorfer's name has cropped up as a potential nominee for state treasurer, he has not expressed an interest in running. He says there are plenty of potential candidates, and he expects any one to be elected to be a formidable task.

Altorfer said the Democrats have their problems with current economic conditions and it all adds up to a "demoralizing effect on the public. Both parties must do much to win back credibility."

Jockey sentenced on income tax evasion

Gabriel R. Garcia, 29-year-old horse race jockey of Collinsville area tracks, was sentenced Thursday to five years' probation by U. S. District Court Judge Omer Pops at Springfield.

Garcia on May 18 had pleaded guilty to a four-count criminal information on failure to file federal income tax returns for 1966 through 1969.

A special condition of probation was that Garcia file all delinquent returns within 30 days and that he pay all the taxes, penalties and interest due within a four-year period.

Leon C. Green, district director of Internal Revenue for Central and Southern Illinois, said $18,247 tax was due on unreported gross income of $82,457 for the years in question. Garcia has raced about ten years at Fairmount, Collinsville, and Cahokia Downs, East St. Louis.

HURT AS AUTO FLIPS

He was treated for bruises to the left shoulder and left ankle at St. Elizabeth Hospital at 4:30 p.m. Friday, X-rayed and released.

City fund balances assure tax levy cut

By HARRY BARNES
Press-Record Staff Writer

Granite City ended its 1972-73 fiscal year with balances in its general fund totaling $1,420,912 which should result in further reductions in the city's tax rate next year.

In addition, the city had on deposits at the beginning of its current fiscal year May 1 a total of $632,897 in federal revenue sharing funds, of which $812,291 has been deposited in interest-bearing U. S. Treasury bills.

The general fund balances listed in an annual financial report by City Treasurer Paul Rutledge are the largest in the city's history and are expected to result in a lower tax levy later this year and subsequently a drop in the 1973 tax rate on which tax collections will be based in 1974.

Rutledge reported to city officials that at the end of the 1972-73 fiscal year on April 30, the city had a total of $812,291 in federal revenue sharing funds, of which $537,706 in its transferable general fund, and $274,585 in general unclaimed funds (non-transferable), for the total of $1,420,912.

The report showed that in addition to the general fund balances and the $632,897 in revenue sharing funds, the city also had a year-end balance of $292,788 in its motor fuel tax fund.

Rutledge attributed the city's sound financial status to a combination of more revenue than was anticipated and fewer expenditures than were originally budgeted for the 1972-73 fiscal.

He emphasized, however, that the balances are "most welcome" at this time because of a series of sewer breaks in the Nameoki area "that could run the city into a $1 million repair bill as they did in 1969."

Rutledge noted that the $1.4 million balance and the revenue sharing funds, with which the city may finance projects that otherwise would cost local tax dollars, is certain to mean a tax rate reduction for the 1973 year because the city's tax levy which will be adopted late this summer will be determined to a great extent on the amount of funds available.

The city cut its 1972 tax rate, upon which tax bills will be based for collection this year, to $1.142 per $100 assessed valuation. Last year the rate was $1.213. The rate for this year, which is expected to drop because of the city's substantial fund balances, will not be established until next spring.

The treasurer said that last year's higher tax rate of $1.213 per $100 assessed valuation helped accumulate the balances in accounts where sizeable expenditures were anticipated, but did not occur.

An example of this, Rutledge said, is the maintenance of sewers account in the general fund which started the last fiscal year with a balance of $17,501. The city levied a substantial sum for this account last year and received taxes of $172,551 for that purpose.

During the year, however, sewer problems that had been expected failed to develop and the city spent only $24,974 out of a total income of $193,067, leaving a balance of $168,093 in that account alone.

The interest and judgment account in the general fund was another example, Rutledge said. In that account the balance on hand at the beginning of the year was $135,230, for total receipts of $219,681 during the year.

Expenditures in the interest and judgment account amounted to only $29,653, leaving a balance of $189,725 at the end of the fiscal year.

Rutledge's report shows that in the transferable general fund, receipts in five separate accounts totaled $1,752,298, including balances at the beginning of the 1972-73 fiscal year, and total expenses of $66,973 and transfers to other funds of $1,127,620, leaving a balance of $557,706.

The transferable fund includes the tax commission, working cash, parking meter, sales tax and state income tax accounts. These accounts are used as sources of fund transfers to regular general fund accounts to help meet operating expenditures.

According to the report, Granite City received a total of $796,857 in sales tax allotments from the state, plus $338,244 in allotments of state income tax funds during the 1972-73 fiscal year.

Exposition and performing arts center bill advances

State Senator Sam M. Vadalabene announced that the Senate passed 39-7 Friday legislation to create an Exposition and Performing Arts Authority for this region.

In his first race for the Senate, Vadalabene pledged to work for a convention center in the Madison-St. Clair Counties area. Such a bill received a favorable response in last year's session, only to die in the Illinois House.

"In creating this authority, we have an opportunity to contribute significantly to the economic and cultural development of the area—and without any increase in taxes," he said Friday.

"The financing will come from the same funds that supported construction of McCormick Place in Chicago: the Agricultural Premium Fund and the Metropolitan Fair and Exposition Authority Reconstruction Fund. Our area is entitled to a significant share of these resources."

"With good planning, we can produce a facility that will enhance tourism, create jobs and make our region a showplace of the state and nation. I can't imagine a more creative, productive use of existing assets," Sen. Vadalabene commented.

"We are going to make every effort to see that it passes in the House this session. With Governor Walker's commitment to working for the people at the grassroots level, I feel certain that he will view this legislation favorably."

The plan calls for $15 million in the two funds to serve as backing for construction revenue bonds.

The authority would be composed of 12 members appointed by the governor, with the governor as a 13th member.
